A full-page sheet of white graph paper. The grid consists of small squares formed by thin gray dashed lines. There are 20 columns and 20 rows of these small squares. Five horizontal solid black lines divide the page into six equal sections, each containing four rows of the small squares. A single vertical solid black line runs down the center of the page, between the 10th and 11th columns, dividing it into two equal halves. This central line also passes through all five horizontal sectioning lines.

A full-page sheet of white graph paper. The grid consists of small squares formed by thin gray lines. There are 20 columns and 20 rows of squares. A thicker vertical line runs down the left side, creating a margin. A thicker horizontal line runs across the top, creating a header area. The intersection of these two thick lines forms a rectangular box in the top-left corner.
